In ancient times, traditional drugs were dispensed by practitioners themselves. Well trained in identifying, collecting, and treating raw materials and manufacturing drugs, these practitioners used to ensure high quality of their medicines and patient care. However, in modern times, the manufacture and services of AYUSH has been taken over into larger scale & volume. The scale and expanse of this industry has highlighted the need for standardization and latest quality control measures in services as well as in products. The Government of India is committed to infuse quality of Ayurveda, Yoga & Naturopathy, Unani, Siddha & Homeopathy services and products. In this direction a number of policies, acts have been formulated to ensure proper standardization and growth of this segment. The Ministry of AYUSH has established Central Council for Research, Statutory councils for regulation of education & practice, Central Laboratories, National Institutes to ensure the best AYUSH healthcare for the citizens.

Keep up-to-date with today's rapidly changing AYUSH regulatory environment. Those interested in quality improvement of patient care & product manufacturing should not miss this opportunity of meeting the masters of AYUSH services & products.
